Raymond Remmer has been appointed practice administrator of Nemours Florida, the Jacksonville-based pediatric health system said Monday.

Remmer will be responsible for managing and directing physicians at the three Nemours Children’s Clinics in Florida. His appointment is effective immediately.

He will report to R. Jay Cummings, M.D., vice president physician practices.

Remmer joined Nemours in 1998 and spent six years with the Florida practice. He most recently was director of administrative affairs for the Office of the President from 2006 to 2009. He is a graduate of the University of Florida with master’s degrees in both business administration and health administration.

Remmer replaces Bill Winder who was appointed early last year to a newly created position of senior administrator — Nemours Florida. In his new role, Winder is collaborating with a team of professionals in leading the development and integration of the Nemours Florida system of care, including Nemours Children’s Hospital in Orlando.
