University of Florida's Kelley Godfrey selected as Beta Gamma Sigma Ambassador

Beta Gamma Sigma, the international business honor society, would like to congratulate Kelley Godfrey for being selected into the Beta Gamma Sigma Ambassador Pilot Program. She was selected by the leadership of University of Florida's Beta Gamma Sigma Chapter. Godfrey traveled to Memphis, Tennessee in November to receive special training related to her duties as University of Florida's Beta Gamma Sigma Chapter Ambassador.

The Beta Gamma Sigma Ambassador Pilot Program will focus on further enhancing recognition of the Society this spring. As a member of the program, Godfrey will interact with fellow students on campus, sharing her insights and recognizing the value of accepting the invitation to lifetime membership through her own personal experiences.

Godfrey, who is an economics major at the University of Florida, is expected to graduate this spring.

About Beta Gamma Sigma

Beta Gamma Sigma is the international honor society serving business programs accredited by AACSB International – The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business. Membership in Beta Gamma Sigma is the highest recognition a business student anywhere in the world can receive in a business program accredited by AACSB International.

Beta Gamma Sigma has established 500 collegiate chapters on six continents, and inducted more than 650,000 outstanding students into membership since its founding in 1913. These members have served in corporate, government, non-profit, educational, and other management positions at every level of responsibility. Members currently reside in all 50 U.S. states and more than 160 countries around the world. For more information, visit www.betagamma.org.
