

Accounting Student Inducted into the Warrington Hall of Fame

Jebi Mathew

At the 2009 School of Business Awards Banquet, Jebi Mathew (BSAc, '09) was inducted into the Warrington College of Business Administration Hall of Fame. This is the highest honor that can be bestowed on an undergraduate in business or accounting. Students are selected based on their outstanding contributions to the Warrington community and mentorship of their peers.

During his undergraduate career, Jebi Mathew demonstrated outstanding commitment to leadership and community service. Through Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE), he led two projects designed to increase financial literacy. Jebi helped expand Managing Money Matters, a program that teaches freshmen students personal finance skills. Jebi also started the SIFE Financial Literacy Challenge, a national program that reached over 4,200 high school students. This project was recognized by the Clinton Global Initiative and SIFE USA for its innovation and impact.

Additionally, Jebi served the campus community through involvement in other student organizations. He was the Programming Director for the International Business Society, Co-Director of the GatorTeens Mentor Program, and an advisory board member for the Florida Leadership Academy. While on the FLA Advisory Board, Jebi helped develop an alumni database to increase connectivity and mentorship between current students and alumni. He also served as a student representative on the WCBA Undergraduate and Teaching Committees.

Jebi represented the college at case competitions and conferences in Hong Kong, Seattle, and New York. He was a member of two winning teams in the PricewaterhouseCoopers xTax Case Competition, and received an Honorable Mention in the national competition.

Beyond academics, Jebi took advantage of study abroad and other professional development opportunities. In Spring 2007, Jebi participated in the college's study abroad program in Madrid, Spain. During his summers as an undergraduate Jebi participated in professional-level internships. He completed internships with Wachovia Bank, Goldman Sachs, and Deloitte Consulting. After graduation Jebi will start as an Advisory Associate with PricewaterhouseCoopers in their Operations, People, and Change practice in New York City.
