Miller Zell, Inc.

Sandy Miller is President and Chairman of Miller Zell Inc., an integrated store development agency.

After service in the Army, he bought a silk-screen printing business. By 1974, the company began specializing in providing services and products to all types of retail chains. The company has evolved into handling national new store and renovation programs for many of the world's largest retail and franchisee companies. Today, the 600,000-foot home office campus includes the Design Center, a unique retail lab, Logistics Center, and a highly sophisticated printing and distribution operation. The company has offices in Atlanta, Chicago, Richmond, New York, Louisville, Toronto, Nancy (France) and Buenos Aires and an office/warehouse in Mexico City.

For the last 10 years, Miller has believed that the complex process of developing high performance retail stores, a process largely unchanged in the past 20 years, is too expensive, slow and not measurably goal focused.

Miller Zell (www.millerzell.com) integrates all of the critical activities required to bring a retailer's brand image to life in their stores --- the strategic and creative development services as well as the comprehensive implementation services. The privately held company and its 400 professionals are headquartered in Atlanta.

Miller Zell's mission is to help clients maximize the ROI of their store development program: stores that are exciting to shop in; stores that strengthen brand image; stores that deliver significant and sustained increases in sales and profits --- stores that are created in less time at a lower cost.

The company provides services to some of the world's largest clients, which include Wal-Mart, Home Depot, Ford Motor Company, ExxonMobil, H&R Block and Circuit City.

Miller is a graduate of Emory University. He is very active in church civic and charitable activities in Atlanta.
