Retailing Student of the Year

As the Miller Center's Retailing Student of the Year, Michelle Rossi has truly changed the face of retailing on the University of Florida Campus. She has held the position of President of the Retail Society for the Spring and Fall Semesters of 2008 and strives to encourage students to try retailing as a career. Encouragement isn't her only responsibility, she has chosen to show the students of the Retail Society how amazing retailing can be by example. She completed an internship with Dillard's this summer where afterwards she was given an opportunity to take part in the biannual Clinique Bonus Time. After only two weeks in this role, she surpassed her selling goal by 10%. She has recently been offered a full-time management position at the Dillard's store in Gainesville where she has accepted and already started her career. As a senior, English Major, not only has she found a career she loves, but she continues to show students on campus that retailing could be a good fit for any major.
