Fifth-year Financial Support UF Finance Doctoral Students

Students admitted to the Ph.D. program are generally guaranteed four years of financial support, provided that they are making good progress toward their degrees. A degree can be completed in four years, but this has been the exception in recent years.

Students who remain in residence for a fifth year are currently compensated for teaching undergraduate courses. This has been our policy for quite a while, and we expect it to continue. At the same time, this arrangement may be threatened by future budgetary cuts. The Department will make every effort to support students during their fifth years of study.