Frederick E. FISHER SCHOOL OF ACCOUNTING

The Fisher School of Accounting provides a rich environment for the study of accounting. Students in the program experience a curriculum dedicated to growth in a complex and important field.

Accounting at UF traces its roots back to 1923 when the first accounting course was offered. From there the demand for more course offerings quickly grew and in 1947 the department of accounting was officially formed with 255 students. With continued growth, the department formed into an experimental School in 1977, and the faculty Senate voted to make the School permanent in 1983. It was ultimately renamed the Fisher School of Accounting in 1985 to honor alumnus Fredrick Fisher. Today, Gerson Hall houses the Fisher School of Accounting administrative offices, its faculty, and students. Gerson Hall is a 36,000 square foot, $9.3 million structure.

The School’s faculty have earned Ph.D. degrees from the nation’s leading universities and are committed to excellence in teaching, research, and service. The faculty produce important scholarly work, serve as editors and referees for major accounting journals, and participate in service to professional and government organizations at the international, national, and state levels.

UF ALMA MATER

Florida, our Alma Mater, thy glorious name we praise.
All thy loyal sons and daughters,
a joyous song shall raise.
Where palm and pine are blowing,
where southern seas are flowing,
Shine forth thy noble gothic walls,
thy lovely vine clad halls.
Neath the orange and blue victorious,
our love shall never fail.
There’s no other name so glorious,
all hail, Florida, hail!
