Description

The Sociology area of specialization provides students with a unique perspective for looking at how society works and at the intricate relationships between individuals and society. Sociologists study social life and the social causes and consequences of human behavior. Sociology's subject matter ranges from the intimate family to the hostile mob, from crime to religion, from divisions of race and social class to the shared beliefs of a common culture. The sociology specialization provides students the opportunity to develop critical thinking, communication and analytical skills that give them an edge in today's information society and global workplace.
