

Camila Duque – Exchange in Nice, France

Maors: Political Science & Finance

I studied abroad because...

I wanted to immerse in a different culture, learn a new language and meet people from all over the world.

My biggest challenge before studying abroad was...

Figuring out where I was going to live. I had to find my own housing and it took a while to find the most economical apartment and the perfect roomie.

My typical breakfast abroad was...

Muesli with yogurt. France has the best cereals ever!

My favorite spot in my host city was...

A tiny coffee shop in Antibes city center called Choopy's

The most unforgettable thing that happened...

Getting stuck in Nice in the middle of a Sunday night after a football game because we didn't plan transportation correctly. We ended up staying in the airport for a really long time until a kind soul gave us a ride back to our town.

The weirdest food I tried abroad...

Socca, a fried chickpea pancake traditional to Nice

One cool experience I had abroad ...

I went to my first live football match: Nice vs. Toulouse

The most surprising thing about study abroad ...

The surprisingly strong attachments that I made with the people, the city, and the language

Something I took away from abroad...

Learning the amazing possibilities of unplanned adventures. Being able to just go with the flow made me more independent, outgoing, and assertive.
